30 years have passed since Oakland had a cultural plan. This plan is intended to serve as the first of two phases of a reset for Cultural Affairs that is relevant to today’s Oakland.

Phase One: Adopt a new vision of cultural equity for the City & redefine the work of Cultural Affairs

Phase Two: Ground the vision in new practices & resources

REFLECTIONS FROM...

THE CULTURAL COMMUNITY

- Shrinking investments in the arts & culture sector
- Retaining cultural spaces in an over-heated real estate market
- Lack of adequate performance venues
- Need for more equitable funding

THE GENERAL PUBLIC

Likes: Diversity ♦ Environmental Beauty ♦ People (unpretentious, open, progressive) ♦ Arts & Culture Activities

Wants:

- All people feel their culture is respected
- Neighborhood-based resources
- Create connections to build unity and understanding
- Orient newcomers to the culture of Oakland
- Programs for youth and marginalized people
- People take greater ownership of the community
A NEW CULTURAL VISION FOR OAKLAND

Equity is the Driving Force
Analyze and address the causes of disparities and advocate for robust funding of disinvested communities

Culture is the Frame
Embrace cultures as systems of knowledge, values, and ways of being—and artmaking as one powerful aspect of culture

Belonging is the Goal
Promote belonging through social connectedness and engagement in the civic commons

Working Across Government
Promote the value of cultural diversity across city government in order to advance equity
CULTURAL EQUITY DEFINED

Cultural equity in a democratic and diverse society recognizes:

• all cultures have value;
• cultural diversity makes society more resilient; and
• all cultures should have equal access to opportunities to achieve social esteem.

This equity of opportunity entails:

• self-determined cultural expression, affirmation, and learning;
• spaces and resources for cultural production and participation;
• creating connections and cross-cultural understanding and engagement;
• stewardship of place; and
• access to knowledge and skills to advocate for community cultural development.

Achieving cultural equity requires fair and just distribution of resources and the identification and remedying of institutionalized norms that have systemically disadvantaged categories of people based on, e.g., race, ethnicity, customs, gender identity, sexual orientation, age, religion, disability, and socioeconomic or citizenship status.
GUIDING PRINCIPLES

➢ Build Trust
➢ Focus on Assets, not Deficits
➢ Leverage Resources
➢ Work Collaboratively
➢ Look for Intersectionality
➢ Build Capacity for Civic Engagement
➢ Continually Improve
FULFILLING THE VISION: A NEW ROLE FOR CULTURAL AFFAIRS

The work of Cultural Affairs must fully recognize and strengthen the realms where cultural life actually takes place. Where culture flourishes has no hard boundaries—non-profit or for-profit, owned or rented, lived in workspace or worked in living space.

The organizations and businesses of Oakland’s arts & cultural economy (ACE) engage over 5,500 full & part-time employees, around 2,500 contractors & interns, and 2,200 volunteers.

A map of Oakland’s cultural assets extends far beyond its cultural spaces to embrace community centers, faith organizations, parks and libraries, school yards, music and movement studios, arts and book stores—all the places people build community.
FULFILLING THE VISION: A NEW ROLE FOR CULTURAL AFFAIRS

Cultural Spaces: Cultural production and presentation take place in many kinds of spaces—all needed for a healthy creative ecology.

→ Work across sectors to retain, improve, and create cultural spaces

Neighborhood Places: Many neighborhoods don’t have the cultural resources they need to thrive.

→ Address disparities and build neighborhood capacity for cultural expression

Culture in the Civic Commons: Public spaces are the civic assets that exist in each area of the city and can be engaged more robustly to build equity.

→ Promote cultural equity through the civic commons
FULFILLING THE VISION: A NEW ROLE FOR CULTURAL AFFAIRS

Strengthening Oakland’s Cultural Ecosystem: Oakland’s cultural communities have social and creative capital that should be lifted up.

→ Build cultural equity and asset-based approaches to strengthen the diverse cultural ecosystem

Building Infrastructure for Cultural Equity: Making cultural equity a reality is not possible without more staffing, training, tools, and added resources to put into communities.

→ Strengthen Cultural Affairs’ capacity to implement meaningful change for communities and to promote cultural equity across government
FULFILLING THE VISION: NEXT STEPS

- Plan adoption by City Council
- Hire Cultural Affairs support staff to reactivate Commission
- Identify and secure internal and external resources to advance the implementation of the cultural plan
- Racial/cultural equity impact analysis
- Launch Neighborhood Voice and Creative Fellows grant opportunities
- Revise/create programs with a stronger equity orientation
- Collaborate with other City offices to advance equity holistically for Oakland
